Their testimony was the same as that given in the former trial—that they were home and in bed the night of the murder, that the two sons did not arise until late the next morning and the father did not get up until he was aroused by the coming of the witnesses.

Court was adjourned at noon today by Judge Raybould on account of his being Good Friday. He said that because of the importance of the case he could not adjourn court for the whole day.

The state's evidence certainly amounted to practically a repetition of the testimony heard at the first trial of the Ruizes at the September term, which resulted in a hung jury. The court has taken no action yet on the motion of W. A. Keleher, appointed by the court for the defense of Jose Medina for a new trial. Medina was convicted of murder in the first degree.
